SPECIAL EDUCATION TASK FORCE VIRTUAL PANEL

August 2020 Training

Reopening Schools

What Will It Look Like?

School districts are being challenged with when and how to reopen schools while ensuring the health and safety of their students, teacher and our communities during this unprecedented time we are living in. Our panel will discuss what the new landscape may look like in our schools – will it be buses half empty, students having their temperatures read before entering the building, children and teachers wearing masks, no recesses on the playground, desks 6 feet apart and one-way hallways? We will discuss how this will impact special education classrooms and related service providers.

Please joins us for a live panel discussion. Our panel will share insights into each of their districts planning for reopening for the 2020-2021 school year. This presentation is for parents, professionals and providers who want to learn how some schools will be reopening in the fall.

Presenter: Casey Bardin, Director of Pupil Services, North Colonie Central School District
